HGTV Looking for First-Time Home Buyers

Glen Carbon, Illinois — HGTV's hit series My First Place is coming back for another season and is looking for singles, couples, and families and their REALTORS® in the St. Louis metropolitan area to be part of the show.

According to the Greater Gateway Association of REALTORS®, producers are looking for fun, high energy people who are just beginning the process of looking for their FIRST home and would like to share their story with HGTV. The goal of the show is to capture all of the trials and tribulations of looking for, bidding on, and buying your first place.

Taping of the show begins this summer. Ideal candidates will be enthusiastic buyers working with a REALTOR® who have a great story to tell and a desire to share their experiences.

Candidates who complete the taping will receive a surprise housewarming gift as part of the show and a DVD copy of their episode as a keepsake of their first home-buying experience.

My First Place follows a set of first-time home buyers and their REALTOR® along the stress-filled, exciting search for the perfect home. Throughout the journey, they will receive the latest information about financing in today's market, plus proven know-how straight from real estate professionals.
